Some of London's best chefs are going head-to-head every Thursday to Saturday at Notting Hill's Tom's Deli this November in an Ali-v-Foreman-style cook-off. Chefs from London restaurants St John, Petrus, Trullo, Bocca di Lupo and the team behind Mile High, Shuttlecock Inc, will be pulling no punches as they fight to impress the harshest of critics YOU. Given the same ingredients bought fresh from the market that morning, pairs of chefs will be challenged to create a three-course meal, both serving their dishes to the discerning punters. Voting takes place after each round/course so best of three wins. Expect heavyweight cooking with an Italian accent.

About Tom's Delicatessen

What with The Cow, Lucky 7 and Crazy Homies next door as well as this deli down the road, Tom Conran - middle son of Sir Terence - has well and truly established himself in this fashionable corner of Notting Hill. He's clearly doing something right - the locals can't get enough and each place gets pretty packed, especially at weekends. More about Tom's Delicatessen
